Girls, Believing Alarm Is For Drill, Perish at Binghamton, N. Y.

MANY VICTIMS ARE ROASTED TO DEATH

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., July 22.—A big force of city employees began today the search for the dead entombed beneath the smoldering ruins of the overall factory of the Binghamton Clothing company, destroyed by fire yesterday.

Return for Valuables.

The heavy loss of life is believed to have been largely due to the fact that the employees, believing that one of the frequent fire drills was being held, were slow in leaving the building.

Literally Roast to Death.

The flames spread with lightning-like rapidity and the intensity of the heat prevented the firemen from getting within fighting range of the building until rescue was impossible.

Few Bodies Are Identified.

The exact number of persons who perished in the fire is not yet known. Only half a dozen of the bodies recovered have been identified.

City Officials Say Heavy Toll

City officials say the death toll at 50, but last night it may reach 60, and physicians expressed the belief that the bodies of some of the children, who were found in the center of the building, would never be found.

Majority Are Americans.

Isabel Freeman, president of the Binghamton Clothing company, estimates there were about 125 employees in the building when the fire started. Eighty percent of the girls employed were Americans.

Many Badly Injured.

The building was but four stories high and many who jumped even from the topmost floor, escaped with few injuries, although most of them were badly maimed. It was on the fourth floor that most of the women worked and that the loss of life and injury was greatest.
