FRISCO'S BARBARY COAST

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 15.—The Barbary Coast faces extinction. A score of clergymen, following from their pulpits against this world-known assemblage of dance halls, drinking places and downright dives, first requested the city fathers to close the Barbary Coast, and later exploited in many a novel and South Sea story. Of late years, to accommodate country tourists who wished to see the fictional place, a whole new set of dance halls has been developed, regardless of expense. Arguments raised against the existence of the Coast by the clergymen that it is immoral, that it has come to be directly in the path traveled by the large and industrious Italian colony on its way down town and that its presence will hurt the Panama-Pacific exposition in 1915.

PIEST KILLS A GIRL HE LOVED

The age of 18 enrolled in St. Augustine's high school in Mainz, and on December 23, 1904, was ordained. He held several churches in Mainz, and then came to America because of poor health. After remaining in New York City a short time he was assigned to the church in Louisville, Ky. In 1909 he went to Trenton, N. J., and in December, 1910, he became assistant to father Braun, pastor of St. Boniface's church, where he met the girl.

The report comes from an official source at Saltillo but has not been confirmed. The American embassy has been advised by the foreign minister, Senor Gamboa, the foreign minister, had no advice. He expressed regret but added that it was no more than might be expected because of the "neutrality policy" of the United States, which had hampered the administration in proceeding with a strong hand against the rebels.

The Americans are said to be headed by consul general G. C. Allen, of Monterey, who went to Torreon to notify the rebels to leave Torreon. Wilson's warnings. They left Torreon on September 1, traveling by the most available conveyances across the plains in the direct line to Saltillo, where they met the girl.

The vice consul at Saltillo, John P. Silliman, has telegraphed to the embassy that H. Decentry and another American went to Saltillo to try to learn the fate of the American refugees. The American embassy is inclined today to believe that reports of their departure toward Reata, doublets in order to escape the rebel bands along the direct route and possibly enroute at Reata for Monterey.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 15.—Officials here are inclined to believe the Americans reported in rebel hands in Mexico are in a better position than the rebels stoutly maintain that the Americans are in no danger at all. Territory through which the Americans are traveling is controlled by the "Constitutionalists" and the agents have been made to understand that the United States looks to them for protection of the fugitives.

AMERICANS HELD BY REBEL BAND

Wilson-Bryan Policy for Inability of Federalists to Revive them, Says Senor Gamboa.

Mexico City, Mex., Sept. 15.—A hundred Americans, including a number of women and children, refugees from Torreon, are reported to have been held by rebels while proceeding overland to Saltillo.
